“Wholeness & (Self-)Leadership”

Wholeness starts with you, with the individual, every day anew. To bring it to the organization, you need to have a wholeness practice on your own. Inside the organization, the practice continues and needs to be integrated in leadership as well as in (shared leadership) collaboration practices.

“Collaboration on steroids”

Organisations aren't built on enforced hierarchies, they're built on trust. It's the key ingredient in collaboration. We are heading into the age of 'hyper-collaboration'. What kind of a mindset will be required, what management practices will need to evolve and how can we start to foster this now?

Bring open, creative and exploratory minds to explore what collaboration means now and in the future.

“Tensions and conflict management”

Why it is common sense to address conflicts and tensions as early as possible in the self-managed set-up especially? What does my organisation mean with conflict resolution and how do we deal with conflicts and tensions - practices and learnings sharing, reflect together and answer questions.

“Beyond EQ for Leaders”

Leadership is about inspiring and galvanizing others to turn a vision into action.... and emotion (not logic) drives behavior. So why is the EQ (emotional quotient) conversation only focused on managing the mutable emotions that hijack us, rather than harnessing the motivating emotions that drive us? In this session we'll explore 7 "motivating emotions" based on core needs, and discuss how they translate into personal wholeness, authentic leadership, evolutionary purpose, and culture.

“Creativity Benefits of Creativity in the workplace”

Give your brain space and see what becomes possible! Creativity at work is a great tool to push ideas and projects beyond your expectations. When you start to think creatively, you dare to imagine suggestions you didn't know your mind could come up with.

Each one of us is creative in their own way and when we all access our full creativity we unleash great potential.

“Building Trust in the workplace”

Trust is the foundation on which self management can thrive. High level of trust not only makes the workplace stress free and enjoyable it also increases the speed of business . It enhances the quality and ease of decision making. But its not easy - as they say, it takes months to build trust but only minutes to break it. An exploration of practical , tangible, on the ground practices that can be implemented by organizations to enhance levels of trust so that self management works.
